

Talking Points Summary - Public School Advocacy (1)

1. Public education is a fundamental human right and is essential for building a just and equitable society. It provides all children with the opportunity to develop their talents and reach their full potential, regardless of their socioeconomic status, race, ethnicity, or other factors.
2. Public education helps to level the playing field and reduce inequalities by providing free and accessible education to all. It ensures that every child has access to quality education regardless of their family's income or ability to pay.
3. Public education is a cornerstone of democracy. It teaches children how to think critically, analyze information, and make informed decisions, which are essential skills for active and engaged citizenship.
4. Public education promotes social mobility and economic growth. It helps to prepare students for the workforce by providing them with the skills and knowledge they need to succeed in the 21st-century economy.
5. Public education is a wise investment. Every dollar invested in education yields a return of up to $10 in economic benefits over a person's lifetime, according to some estimates.
6. Public education is underfunded and needs more resources to meet the needs of students and teachers. Many schools lack the necessary resources, including textbooks, technology, and qualified teachers, to provide quality education to all students.
7. Public education is under attack from privatization and school voucher programs. These initiatives divert public funds to private schools, which often lack accountability and do not serve all students equally.
8. Public education is a community effort. It requires the involvement and support of parents, educators, policymakers, and the broader community to ensure that every child receives a quality education.
9. Public education is a source of pride and identity for communities. It helps to build strong communities by providing a common language and shared values that help to bring people together.
10. Public education is a legacy that we leave to future generations. It is our responsibility to ensure that we provide every child with the opportunity to receive a quality education and to pass on this legacy of learning to future generations.
